Freelancer releases major Android App update

Freelancer Limited (ASX:FLN) today announced it has released the Freelancer App 2.0 for Android after the successful launch and adoption of its Freelancer Messenger App.

The latest version of the Freelancer App for Android allows freelancers to not only explore the thousands of new projects posted daily, but also to communicate with their employers, bid on and accept available projects. Employers will be able to post projects straight from their Android device, review and award work to the freelancer of their choice and manage projects from wherever they are.

Commenting on the launch, Freelancer's CEO and Chairman Matt Barrie said, "The Freelancer App 2.0 for Android is the next stage in our mobile development. Increasingly our community of more than 13 million professionals are using mobile devices to work on the go, and this app will make it even easier for them to connect, collaborate and get work done on Freelancer.com."

Attached is a short presentation on the Freelancer App 2.0 for Android release.
