Federal Government Approves Medicinal Cannabis Exports

MMJ PhytoTech Limited (ASX: MMJ) (“MMJ” or “the Company”) is pleased to advise shareholders that the Company welcomes the recent announcement (4 January 2018) made by Federal Government Health Minister Mr. Greg Hunt outlining the Government’s plans to allow the export of medicinal cannabis products from Australia.

Importantly, MMJ can advise that it is actively assessing a number of Australian-based strategic investment opportunities in the medicinal cannabis sector, aimed at further leveraging the Company’s global distribution networks and cannabis cultivation expertise.

Further details will be provided on these potential strategic investment opportunities in the near-term.

In addition, MMJ through its 59%-ownership in TSX-V listed Harvest One Cannabis Inc. (TSX-V: HVST) (“Harvest One”), has commenced the supply of its Satipharm CBD capsules to approved patients in Australia, via a strategic distribution agreement with Melbourne-based HL Pharma Pty Ltd (“HL Pharma”).

Satipharm CBD capsules are manufactured by Satipharm AG (wholly-owned by Harvest One) and are currently sold throughout key regulated cannabis markets globally.

Commenting on the Federal Government’s decision, MMJ’s Managing Director, Andreas Gedeon, said:

“We are very encouraged by the Federal Government’s plans to fast-track the growth of the Australian medicinal cannabis sector, with this latest development providing local cannabis producers with the required framework to compete on a global scale.

“Prior to this development, the Board had been actively assessing a number of Australian-based investment opportunities to complement MMJ’s existing asset base, and this latest legislative decision has provided the Company with a great deal of confidence to deploy additional capital into the Australian sector.”
